Property Description

Eight-bedroom contemporary villa on 5,736 m² | Pinhal Velho, Vilamoura | €10,800,000

There are houses designed to impress on arrival, and others whose luxury becomes apparent in the way they are lived in. This newly built residence in Pinhal Velho belongs firmly to the latter.

Set behind the privacy of a substantial 5,736 m² plot, the eight-bedroom villa occupies one of Vilamoura's most established and discreet residential enclaves. Its architecture is contemporary but deliberately restrained, with strong horizontal lines, broad expanses of glass and a close relationship between the interiors, gardens and Algarve light.

The scale of the property reveals itself gradually. At its centre is an approximately 90 m² living and dining space, conceived as the social heart of the house. Generous glazing draws daylight deep into the interior and opens the room directly onto the terraces, gardens and swimming pool, allowing the boundaries between inside and outside to almost disappear.

The kitchen follows the same architectural language: clean, contemporary and centred around a substantial island, with the proportions required of a house designed equally for everyday family life and large-scale entertaining.

Five en-suite bedrooms are positioned on the principal floor, giving both family and guests considerable privacy without separating them from the main living spaces.

Upstairs, two further en-suite bedrooms occupy a quieter, more secluded part of the house. Each opens onto expansive private terraces, creating rooms that feel less like conventional bedrooms and more like private suites overlooking the surrounding landscape.

Below, an approximately 300 m² basement adds another dimension to the property. Alongside a substantial garage, it incorporates an additional bedroom and office, with the scale to support the practical requirements of a residence of this calibre.

Outside, the architecture gives way to the landscape. The swimming pool sits within extensive landscaped gardens and broad terraces, creating a series of spaces for dining, entertaining and long summer afternoons outdoors. On a plot approaching six thousand square metres, the overriding luxury is not simply space, but privacy.

That distinction matters in Pinhal Velho, where large plots and low-density surroundings have made the area one of Vilamoura's most coveted residential addresses. The setting feels removed from the activity of the resort, yet Vilamoura Marina, championship golf courses, beaches, international schools and the wider Central Algarve remain within easy reach.

Currently in the final stages of completion and sold fully furnished, this is a substantial contemporary Algarve residence with the increasingly rare combination of architectural scale, privacy and proximity to Vilamoura.
